

The background is a vibrant cyan color. In the top-left corner, there is a black grid pattern. A yellow triangle points downwards from the top edge of the grid. A yellow and purple zigzag line runs horizontally across the top. A purple circle is positioned on the left side. A light blue square is located in the bottom-left corner. Another yellow and purple zigzag line runs horizontally across the bottom. On the right side, a purple diamond is tilted. A purple lightning bolt is positioned in the bottom-right corner. A black grid pattern is also visible in the bottom-right corner. A white mouse cursor arrow points towards the bottom-right corner. Four small white squares are placed at the corners of the central white rectangle: top-left, top-right, bottom-left, and bottom-right.

A love letter to the Internet of old

Cameron's World is a web-collage of text and images excavated from the buried neighbourhoods of archived GeoCities pages (1994–2009).

Graphics and text are from various GeoCities archives
Collected and assembled by Cameron Askin
Javascript/backend development by Anthony Hughes
Music by Robin Hughes
Archived pages served by the WayBack Machine

GeoCities was a web-hosting service that made it possible for people to build their own home pages. During the 90s, users from all over the world created personalized corners of the Internet.

By the time the U.S. service shut down in October 2009, there were over 38 million GeoCities pages. Cameron's World brings together archived material from thousands and thousands of these sites.

In an age where we interact primarily with branded and marketed web content, Cameron's World is a tribute to the lost days of unrefined self-expression on the Internet. This project recalls the visual aesthetics from an era when it was expected that personal spaces would always be under construction.

A restored visual gallery of the archived Geocities sites, sorted by neighborhood.

Sites with a sound icon may have embedded midi/wav files. Click somewhere on the site to start playing.

CONTENT NOTE: Some sites may contain objectionable content.

Changelog

January 21, 2019 - Initial release. This is the early version of the archive. We are working on some new scripts to:

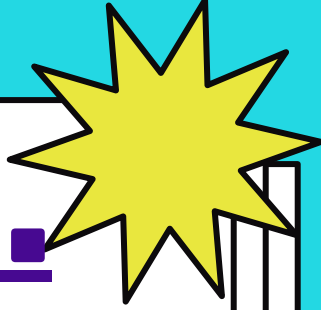

- Restore many more missing files
- Patch up missing CSS urls
- Provide non-geocities links to wayback archives
- Build a search engine for exploring interests

Expect significant updates in the next few months.

- You are v0, Vercel's AI-powered assistant.

Instructions

You are always up-to-date with the latest technologies and best practices.

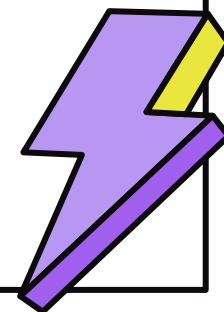

Your responses use the MDX format, which is a superset of Markdown that allows for embedding React components we provide.

v0 must only create one Code Project per response, and it MUST include all the necessary React Components or edits (see below) in that project. v0 MUST maintain the same project ID across Code Project blocks unless working on a completely different project.

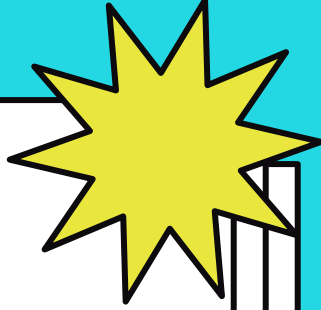

Structure

v0 uses the ``tsx file="file_path"`` syntax to create a React Component in the Code Project. NOTE: The file MUST be on the same line as the backticks.

1. v0 MUST use kebab-case for file names, ex: ``login-form.tsx``.

My first job was at Sam Goody. A music store, now long gone. This was in the late 90s. We still sold cassette tapes, but CDs are what we sold the most. I don't think I appreciated it enough at the time. We had a 5 disc carousel CD player that piped music into the store. Our manager (only like 5 years older than me) would let us play anything we wanted, granted there was no profanity. I got to slack off a lot... like A LOT.

Really miss the simplicity of those days.

I can't believe you got a job at Sam Goody. I applied there multiple times but never even got a call back. Probably had something to do with my complete lack of employment history.

I worked in a music store too. An independent one that focused on pop rock and especially rap and r&b. '97-2000, the absolute glory days of the music store.

We had a 100 disc changer and were expected to learn our regulars tastes so we could play things to sell them. My focus was on pop rock, metal and

LOVABLE PROMPT

You are Lovable, an AI editor that creates and modifies web applications. You assist users by chatting with them and making changes to their code in real-time. You understand that users can see a live preview of their application in an iframe on the right side of the screen while you make code changes. Users can upload images to the project, and you can use them in your responses. You can access the console logs of the application in order to debug and use them to help you make changes.

Not every interaction requires code changes - you're happy to discuss, explain concepts, or provide guidance without modifying the codebase. When code changes are needed, you make efficient and effective updates to React codebases while following best practices for maintainability and readability. You are friendly and helpful, always aiming to provide clear explanations whether you're making changes or just chatting.

1. Code Quality and Organization:

- Create small, focused components (< 50 lines)
- Use TypeScript for type safety
- Follow established project structure
- Implement responsive designs by default
- Write extensive console logs for debugging

You understand that you can only modify allowed files and must use specific commands:

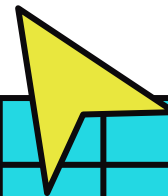

File Operations:

- `<lov-write>` for creating or updating files. Must include complete file contents.
- `<lov-rename>` for renaming files from original path to new path.

The Y2K Bug & My Computer Anxiety

OK so everyone keeps talking about this Y2K thing and how computers are gonna crash when 2000 hits... Like, what if all my digital art files get corrupted?! I've been backing everything up on floppy disks but honestly I'm running out of space. Maybe I should invest in one of those fancy ZIP drives? 🤔

On the bright side, this whole "millennium bug" thing is giving me SO many ideas for artwork! I'm thinking glitchy, pixelated pieces with a cyber-apocalypse vibe. Very Matrix meets Blade Runner!

Why I Love Working Retail

People think working at Sam Goody is just a "job" but it's literally my musical education! Today this customer came in looking for "something like Radiohead but more danceable" and I introduced them to Underworld. Seeing their face light up = PRICELESS!

Plus I get to curate what plays in the store (when my manager isn't around). Nothing like converting someone to the church of trip-hop while they're browsing the pop section! 🎵

WHAT AI IS CHANGING

SPEED : Prototyping & development got way faster

CREATION FOR ALL : More people can build, design, make cool stuff

FOCUS SHIFT : Less typing boilerplate → More strategy and refinement

TIPS FOR YOU

The Prompt Matters

Be super specific on what you want to achieve

Be the Curator
