Humans are not zebras

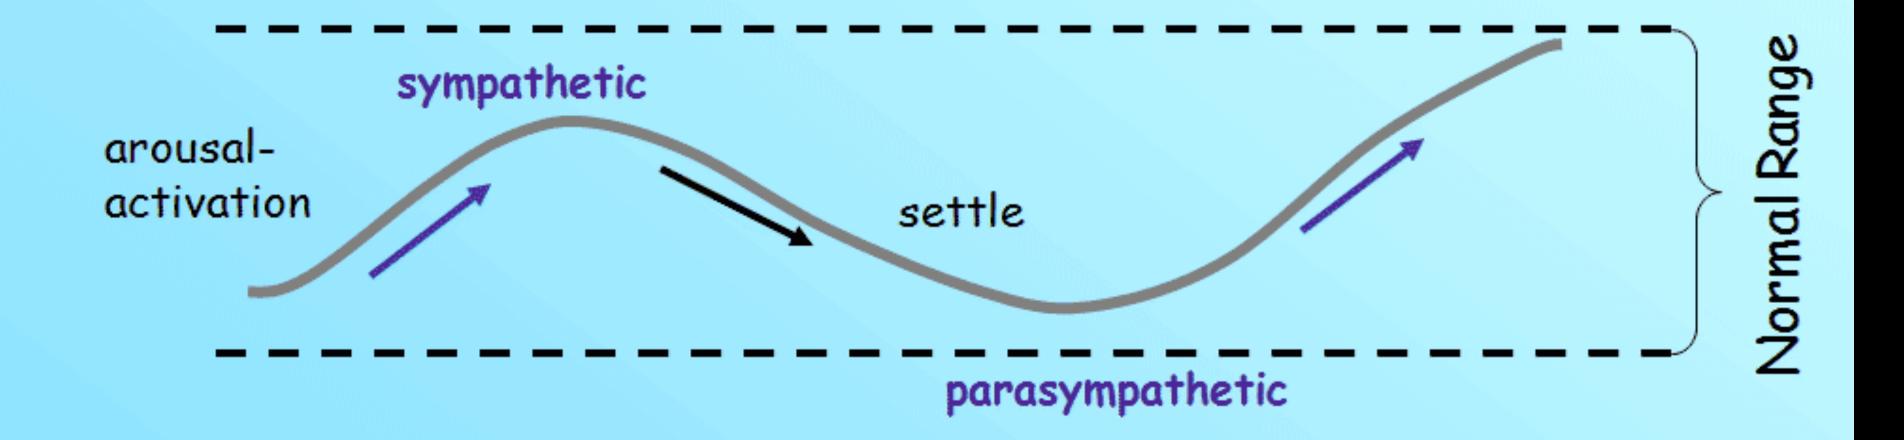

"Animals in the wild are not traumatized by routine threats to their lives, while humans, on the other hand, are readily overwhelmed and often subject to the traumatic symptoms of hyper arousal, shutdown and dysregulation."

- Dr. Peter Levine

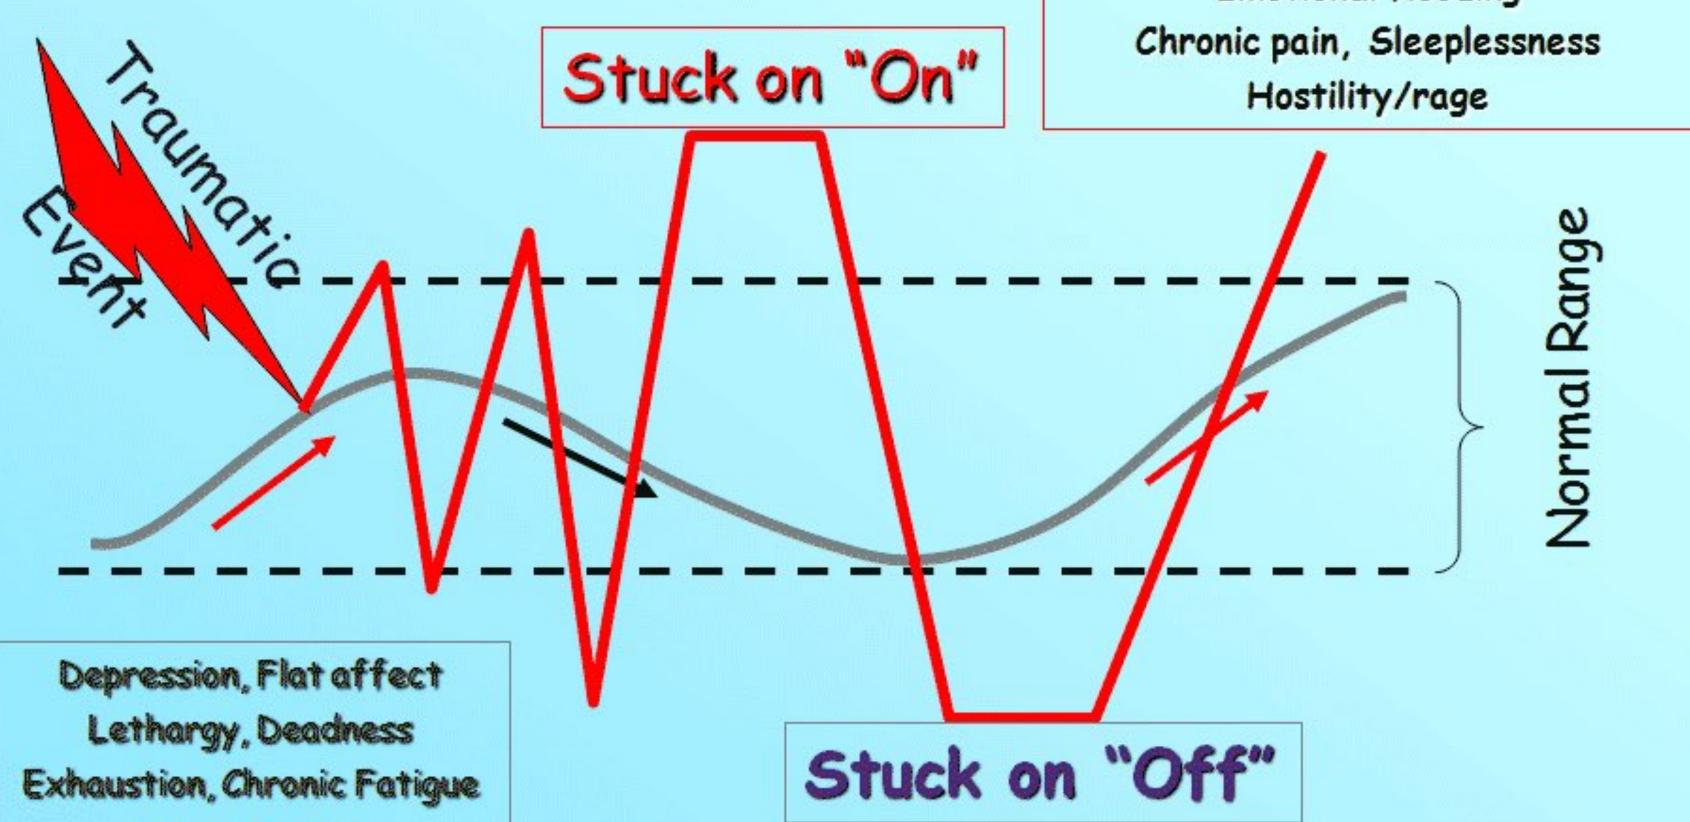

A Healthy Nervous System

Symptoms of Un-Discharged Traumatic Stress

Anxiety, Panic, Hyperactivity
Exaggerated Startle
Inability to relax, Restlessness
Hyper-vigilance, Digestive problems
Emotional flooding
Chronic pain, Sleeplessness
Hostility/rage

Lethargy, Deadness
Exhaustion, Chronic Fatigue
Disorientation
Disconnection, Dissociation
Complex syndromes, Pain
Low Blood Pressure
Poor digestion

Nuanced

- Trauma occurs when one's solution (active response to threat) does not work
- Trauma can result from real or perceived threats
- Trauma is subjective and relative

How does this apply to an organization?

Inappropriate response

"We have a saying in medicine that when you hear hoofbeats, the first thing that should come to mind is a horse, not a zebra." This too cute by half phrase has killed so many zebras. @raf_ideas #Afflicted

Identify your organization's window of tolerance

"Resilient organizations are not traumatized by routine threats to their mission or business. Non-resilient organizations are readily overwhelmed and often subject to the symptoms of overreaction, shutdown and lack of regulated effort."

Rest whenever possible, maybe that means sleep, but any activity that is restorative. I like knitting or reading. Getting outside when I can. Moving my body, it's hard to get outside for a while, but YouTube yoga is great. Saying "no" to other obligations.

during really bad rotations: curl up with throw rugs & tea on the couch, naps between pages, delivery food and gym in my building.

during rotations / teams with no pages: be eternally grateful

Try to get a massage a week. Run on the treadmill each time I get adequate sleep. Paint.

I binge watch Netflix shows my wife isn't interested in and eat so, so many cans of Pringle's. Or potato chips and joppie sauce. Or. Uh. Both.

Sleep in, forget to put phone on charger, accidentally have phone on quiet mode instead of ringer...

now that I put that down it may make sense as to why they no longer wanted me on-call
