

Windshield Damage? No Problem! Preferred Auto Glass Has Got You Covered

Windshields are essential parts of any car, but they are also some of the most vulnerable components. Windshields can be damaged by anything from small stones to more significant impacts like accidents. These damages can compromise the driver's visibility and the car's structural integrity. Fortunately, Preferred Auto Glass can help you fix your car's windshield after an accident if you are searching for windscreen replacement near me.

Here are some types of windshield damage that they can repair or replace.

Chips:

Chips are small damages to the windshield caused by small rocks or debris hitting the windshield. They are relatively minor, but if left unattended, they can grow into larger cracks. Preferred Auto Glass can fix chips by injecting resin into the damaged area, which hardens and restores the windshield's strength and appearance.

Cracks:

Cracks are larger damages that can occur due to various reasons, including rocks, hail, or temperature changes. Cracks can compromise the windshield's integrity and cause it to shatter in severe accidents. Depending on the size and location of the crack, Preferred Auto Glass can repair it by injecting resin or replacing the entire windshield if necessary.

Shattered Windshields:

Shattered windshields are the most severe type of windshield damage. They can occur due to high-impact accidents, severe hailstorms, or vandalism. Shattered windshields can render the car undrivable, and it is crucial to get them fixed immediately. Preferred Auto Glass provides mobile windshield repair services, and they can come to your location to replace your shattered windshield promptly.

Scratches:

Scratches are minor damages that can occur due to various reasons, including tree branches, debris, and cleaning the windshield with abrasive materials. While scratches may not compromise the windshield's integrity, they can affect visibility and aesthetics. Preferred Auto Glass can remove scratches and restore the windshield's clarity.
