Swiss Alps

Body (Edit summary)

B I         Format Source

The Alpine region of Switzerland, conventionally referred to as the Swiss Alps (German: Schweizer Alpen, French: Alpes suisses, Italian: Alpi svizzere, Romansh: Alps svizras), represents a major natural feature of the country and is, along with the Swiss Plateau and the Swiss portion of the Jura Mountains, one of its three main physiographic regions. The Swiss Alps extend over both the Western Alps and the Eastern Alps, encompassing an area sometimes called Central Alps.[1] While the northern ranges from the Bernese Alps to the Appenzell Alps are entirely in Switzerland, the southern ranges from the Mont Blanc massif to the Bernina massif are shared with other countries such as France, Italy, Austria and Liechtenstein.

The Swiss Alps comprise almost all the highest mountains of the Alps, such as Dufourspitze (4,634 m), the Dom (4,545 m), the Liskamm (4,527 m), the Weisshorn (4,506 m) and the Matterhorn (4,478 m). The other following major summits can be found in this list of mountains of Switzerland.

New “Content Editor” role

→ dgo.to/3059984

Add new “Content Editor” role to Standard Profile

Problem/Motivation

Currently there are three Installation Profiles: Minimal, Standard and Demo: Umami Food Magazine.

When you install a new Drupal site with the Standard profile, you get three user roles by default: Admin, Authenticated user (logged-in user when this issue is fixed) and Anonymous.

- Admin role: for site building and development purposes and comes with almost every existing permission by default.
- Authenticated/logged-in role: has the same permissions as the Anonymous user (viewing content) plus is able to post comments.
- Anonymous role: for visitors to the site not logged in.

Drupal is a content management system but we don't have any default user role for creating, editing or managing content.

Proposed resolution

Based on our discovery, this proposal aims to create an out-of-the-box editor role to serve Drupal's main purpose: manage content.

We propose that this new role is named “Content Editor.”

Installed with the standard profile, this new role will be created with a new set of permissions and options. Our initial proposal for this set is:

- Create and edit new content—articles and pages
- Use the basic HTML text format
- View unpublished content
- Create and edit terms (tags and categories)
- Access the administration theme

Remaining tasks

- Agree on the name and machine name for the new role
- Define the new set of permissions
- Create a patch
- Code Review
- Create tests?

User interface changes

- Roles and permissions screen:
 - Content Editor role will be included.
 - The new permissions for the role will be checked.
- Edit or Create user screens should include the Content Editor role in the options to select the Below this is a toolbar with 'Save', 'Discard Changes', and 'Revert' buttons. The main editing area shows a recipe page for 'Vegetarian oven baked pasta with spinach and ricotta'. A yellow tooltip box is overlaid on the header area, stating: 'Header is a global region. Any layout changes here will be reflected throughout the site.' with a 'Continue' button. The right sidebar contains a 'Block Library' with options to 'Create new block', a search bar, and a list of 'Recipe Blocks' including 'Header Image', 'Cook Time', 'Title', 'Category', 'Author', 'Publication Date', and 'Body'. The recipe page itself features a title, category ('Dinner'), tags ('Vegetarian', 'Learn to cook'), a large image of the dish, and metadata: 'Preparation time: 45 minutes', 'Cooking time: 35 minutes', 'Serves: 4', and 'Difficulty: Easy'. A descriptive paragraph follows: 'A wholesome pasta bake is the ultimate comfort food. For any ferocious carnivore, bacon can be added with the onions and garlic for extra flavour.' Below this is a section titled 'What you'll need and how to make this dish' with two columns: 'Ingredients' (listing 500g pasta, broccoli, onion, and garlic) and 'Method' (listing three steps: preheating the oven, cooking the pasta and broccoli, and adding onions and garlic).

A wholesome pasta bake is the ultimate comfort food. For any ferocious carnivore, bacon can be added with the onions and garlic for extra flavour.

What you'll need and how to make this dish

Ingredients

500g pasta (penne or fusilli)

One broccoli, cut into bite size florets

1 onion (chopped)

2 cloves of garlic (chopped)

Method

- 1 Preheat the oven to 200C.
- 2 Cook the pasta until its starting to soften (al dente) and drop the broccoli into the boiling water for the last few minutes.
- 3 Whilst the pasta is cooking, soften the onions and garlic in a little oil and add to the pasta and broccoli once its drained.
