HAWKSWORX

/hɔːkswəːks/

The blog, playground, and generally a home on the web for Phil Hawksworth, a web nerd, amateur comedian, and cat botherer.

The source code of this site is available on GitHub and is hosted and updated by Netlify automatically after each code commit

You can usually find me on Mastodon (I've stopped posting on Twitter now, but you can find an archive of my tweets on this site).

You can also sometimes find me at web development conferences, where I might be talking about development techniques. I blog here less frequently than I'd like, but manage it a little more often on the Netlify blog.

Wherever you find me, online or in the real world, please do come and say a friendly hello.

Alias your mastodon account to your own domain with Netlify redirect

#Mastodon , #Fediverse , #Netlify , #Indieweb

Did you know you could use your own domain for your mastodon username without hosting your own instance? It can be done with a single Netlify redirect rule.

The archive of what I posted on Twitter, which I now self host due to a lack of trust in Twitter and some other reasons.

I'll soon begin refelcting all my Mastodon posts here too. I'm happier self-hosting or maintaining an archive of my content on URLs that I can own.

There are tools to help you do this too. Such as this one from the makers of Eleventy.

Our deployment teams have reduced production deployments to 5 days

— A real enterprise client from a past life

Deploys should be and can be friction free

— Something I've said for some time

Would be clever marketing for Netlify for sure. _Builds so cheap you can set your clock by them._
