LEARNING STRATEGIES

Follow Mutual Aid Model

Incorporate an Interdisciplinary Framework

COMPONENTS IN BUILDING A TRAUMA-INFORMED PLC

Dynamics of Mutual Aid

Creating Many Helping Relationships

- Sharing data
- “All-in-the-same-boat” phenomenon
- Dialectical process
- Discussing taboo areas
- Developing a universal perspective
- Mutual support
- Mutual demand
- Individual problem-solving
- Rehearsal
- “Strength-in-numbers” phenomenon

Sharing Data

“All-in-the-Same-Boat”

phenomenon

- Expands members perspectives
- Helps members universalize their life struggles
- Raise level of consciousness to expand their perspectives
- Develops group empathy support

Dialectical Process

Open place for a debate of ideas

dialectical | ,dīə'lektəkəl |

adjective

1 relating to the logical discussion of ideas and opinions: dialectical ingenuity.

2 concerned with or acting through opposing forces: a dialectical opposition between artistic translation and transcription.

“Group members can listen as one member presents the thesis, and the other the antithesis. As each member listens, he or she can use the discussion to develop a personal synthesis. (Shulman, 2020, p. 347)

Discussing a Taboo Area

“A mutual-aid process in which one member enters a taboo area of discussion, thereby freeing other members to enter as well”

Developing a Universal Perspective

“A mutual-aid process in the group in which members begin to perceive universal issues, particularly in relation to oppression, thus allowing them to view their own problems in a more social context and with less personal blame.”

p. 384

- A special case for “all-in-the-same-boat.”
- Can be related to oppression and recognizing the systematic nature
- Fits within the concept of consciousness-raising groups

Mutual Support

The acceptance and caring of the group

p. 378

Mutual Demand

“A mutual-aid process in which group members offer each other help by making demands and setting expectations on personal behavior.”

p. 379

Make individual associations

Share feelings and connection with group members

Easier to see problems of someone else than self

Learning process to improve problem solving.

Rehearsal

“The group becomes a safe place to risk new ways of communicating and to practice actions the group member feels may be hard to do”

p. 381

The mutual-aid process in which group members are strengthened to take on difficult tasks (such as challenging agency policy) through the support of other group members

“Strength-in-Numbers” phenomenon

(Shulman, 2020)

Tasks, Methods, and Skills

Used in Mutual Aid Groups

- Directs group members to each other
- Identifies and focuses on salient themes
- Encourages and reinforces cooperative mutual support norms
- Engagement members to participate in collective activities
- Give participants the ability to do rehearsal

A photograph of Columbia Basin College. In the foreground, a dark stone wall features the college's name in large, light-colored letters. Behind the wall is a modern, multi-story building with a mix of grey concrete and large glass windows. The sky is clear and blue, and there are some trees and utility poles in the background.

Mediating Function

(Schwartz, 1961 as cited in Gitterman, 2017)

Mediating Function

Ten Common Obstacles in Mutual Aid Groups

- Not for this (group/place/type of person)
- The group does not seem to have any sense of we-ness
- The group has no clarity or direction
- A hidden agenda drives the facilitator's actions
- Individual problem-solving leaves most of the members silent most of the time
- Problem-solving leaves most of the members silent most of the time
- Central authority dominates process
- Too much sameness/not enough stimulation in the group
- No sense of apparent progress in achieving the group's purpose

Phases

in Mutual Aid Groups

Working in small groups, discuss the following:

In what ways did the group leader help move the group from the beginning through the ending and transition phases of group work?

Case Study 7-1

A Mutual-Aid Support Group for Persons
With AIDS in Early Substance
Abuse Recovery

LAWRENCE SHULMAN

Persons with AIDS who are in substance abuse recovery struggling with similar concerns can gain support and resources through mutual-aid groups. This case study illustrates the social worker's methods in enhancing mutual aid among participants in an intensive, 8-month, weekly group held in a residence sponsored by an AIDS Action Committee.

Questions

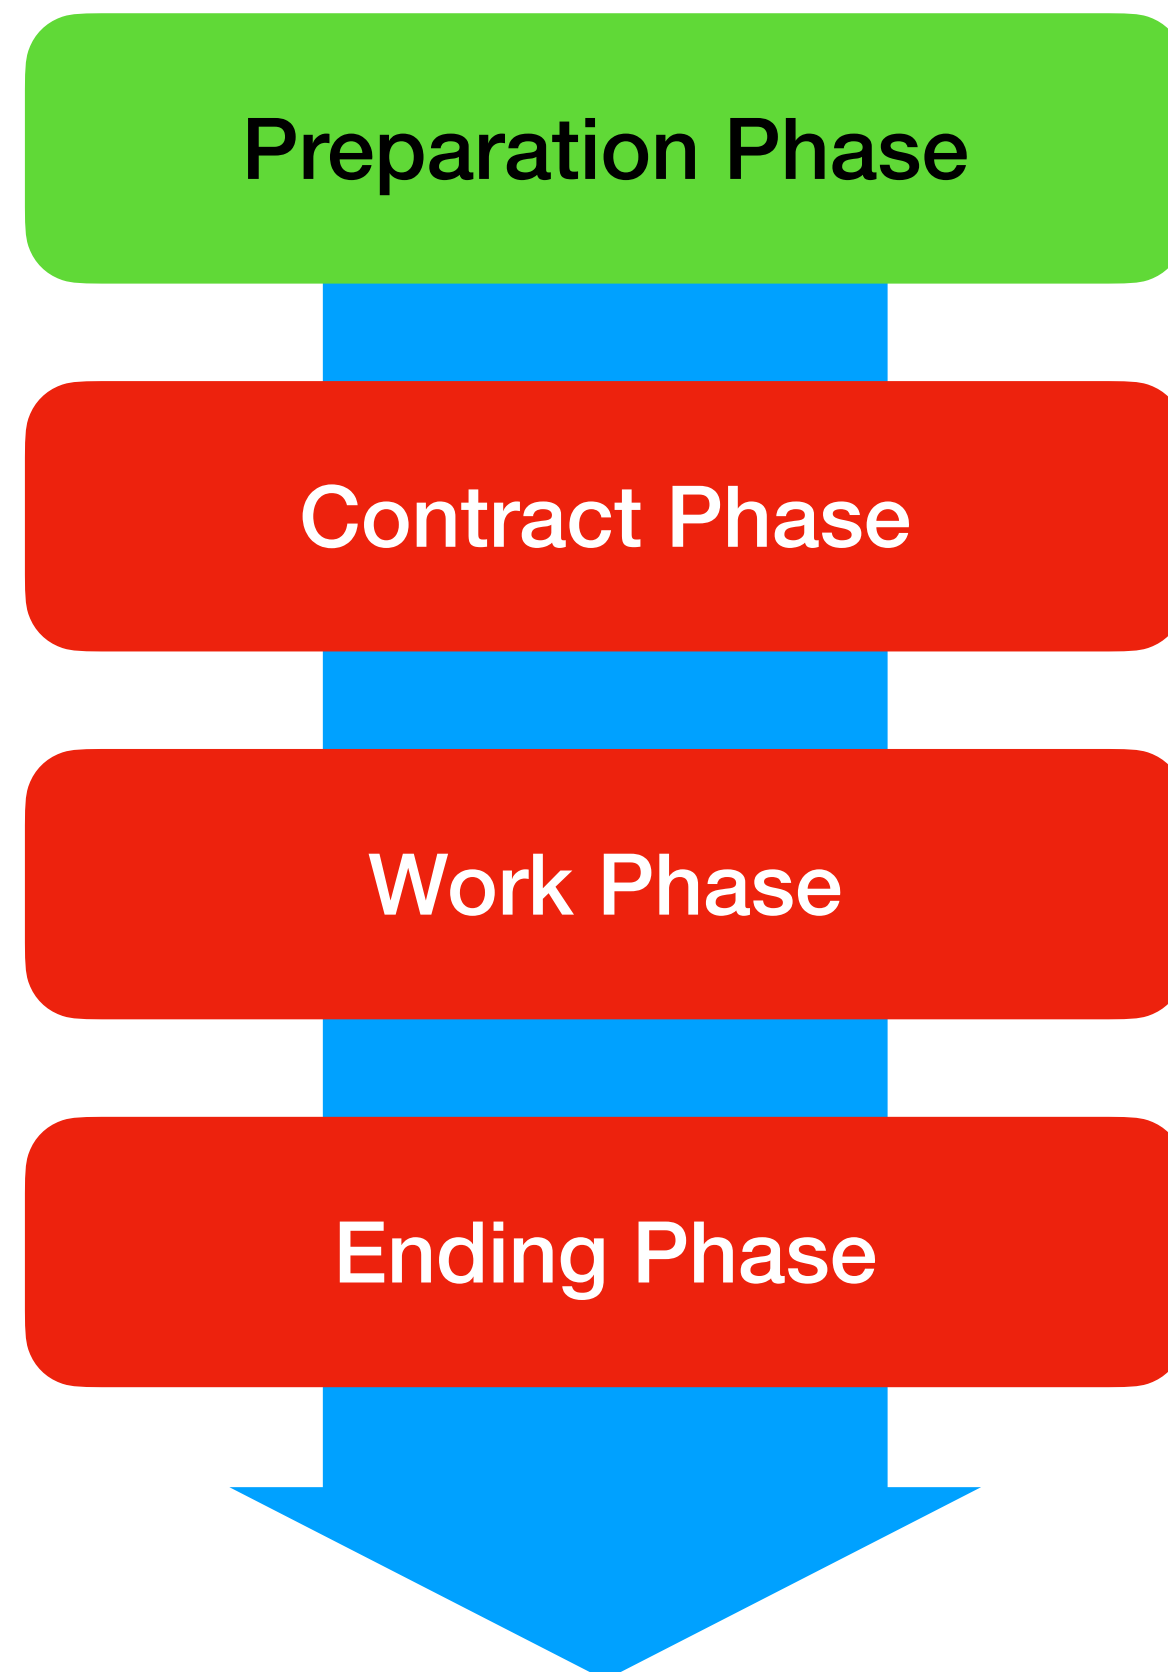

1. What skills are evident in the group leader's approach to working with the group and the individuals in the group?
2. What types of follow-up and supplementary services would be appropriate for clients during the life of the group and after completing the group?
3. How did the group leader address the issue of the group member-group leader dynamics referred to as the authority theme early in the first sessions?
4. What did the group leader do to create a "demand for work" in the group during the fourth session when he recognized the illusion of work?

(Shulman, 2014)
