BUMP

API docs, the right way.

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the Bump API documentation. The left sidebar contains navigation links: Bump, Authentication, Docs (highlighted in green), Previews, and Changes history. The main content area is titled 'Docs' and features a section 'Create a new version' with a description: 'Create a new version for a given documentation, which will become the current version.' Below this, the 'Definition:' section shows a dark box with the endpoint: `POST https://bump.sh/api/v1/docs/{:id}/versions`. The 'Url parameters:' section lists a parameter 'id' (REQUIRED / STRING) with the description 'Documentation's id'. The 'Body:' section lists two parameters: 'definition' (REQUIRED / STRING) described as 'Serialized definition of the version. This should be an OpenApi 2.0 (Swagger) file serialized as a string, in YAML or JSON.' and 'specification' (REQUIRED / STRING) described as 'Specification for the definition, as a path: specification_name/specification_version/format. Example: openapi/v2/yaml'. The 'Responses:' section shows a table with status codes 201 (Version created) and 422 (Definition invalid). A 'Hide response attributes' button is visible at the bottom. A terminal window is overlaid on the bottom right, showing the command: `$ bump deploy doc/openapi.yml`. The URL `https://bump.sh` is visible in the bottom left corner.

If it is not written down, it does not exist

As our organization grows, it gets more and more difficult to keep track of information.

Therefore, we should enforce to publicly share any information concerning the whole company so that we keep a physical trace of what deserves to be known.

In practice, it means:

- Share events/meetings through google calendar INSTEAD-OF via slack or in-person conversation
- Share your ideas during the bimonthly global meeting so they can be discussed and then eventually added (if useful) to a trello board (cf product management section)
- etc.

J'ai appris chaque jour des choses incroyables au contact de cette équipe. Merci pour tout, pour votre bienveillance permanente, pour m'avoir fait aimer encore plus les trains (et les cheminots 🙌), pour m'avoir fait tant progresser humainement et professionnellement. ❤️
