What is Inclusive Design?

Jutta Treviranus

Jutta Treviranus is the Director of the Inclusive Design Research Centre (IDRC) and professor in the faculty of Design at OCAD University¹ in Toronto.

Jutta also heads the Inclusive Design Institute, a multi-university regional centre of expertise.

Inclusive Design, a Definition

- Digital technology can improve societal inclusion
- A methodology that enables and draws on the full range of human diversity.
- Including and learning from people with a range of perspectives.
- Inclusive design doesn't mean you're designing one thing for all people.
- You're designing a diversity of ways to participate so that everyone has a sense of belonging.

And just to make this clear:

This is “store-brand inclusive design”,
not “name-brand inclusive design”.

Why do I care?

An aerial photograph of a rural landscape in Germany, featuring a dense forest and a small village with red-roofed houses. A red location pin is placed in the center of the village. The entire image is covered with a dark purple semi-transparent filter.

Somewhere in the Forest, Germany

As a kid, I already found that to be unfair.

I had Asthma until I was 12.

And while that excluded participation in many activities, it allowed me to go to a “regular” school.

This was not a matter of course at the time.

Allergen immunotherapy helped me eventually.

Why did we get treated differently?

- My condition did only require minor adjustments.
- I did not need an accessible building (but it would have helped).
- My parents are German, his are Greek.

The world³ was not designed for my friend's needs.

- Inaccessible.
- No information available in Greek.
- Segregated Education.

³ Well, in particular Germany in the 80's & 90's.

So, Inclusive Design.

Universal Design
Accessibility

Universal Design

Design an environment so that it might be accessed and used in the widest possible range of situations without the need for adaptation.

“One size – fits all.”

Universal Design

- Based on built environments & architecture.
- Describes the qualities of the final design.
- Great for physical objects.

Source: Mike on Flickr, left image, right image

Accessibility

Requirements that are technical and relate to the underlying code rather than to the visual appearance and requirements that relate to user interaction and visual design.

— Accessibility, Usability, and Inclusion (W3C/WAI)

Accessibility

- An attribute instead of a method.
- Focuses on accessibility standards.
- A foundation for building inclusive solutions.

Inclusive Design can focus on accessibility and have a universal design as an outcome.

Cultural Identity

- The identity or feeling of belonging to a group.
- Group of people sharing the same cultural identity or upbringing.
- Heavily impacted by a person's cultural arena, the place where a person lives.
- Immigrants adjust to the culture of the country they immigrated to linearly over time.
- It is possible to have the ability to obtain competence within two cultures without losing one's sense of identity or having to identify with one culture over the other.

Cultural Identity

Issues can arise when...

- ...the majority culture is assumed by default.
- ...designs created in one cultural environment get transplanted into a different environment.

Aspects of Human Diversity

Racism

Photos by Nathan Dumlao and Kareem Hayes on Unsplash

On the word “Race” in modern Germany

- Basically unused in day to day life.
- No biological basis for “races”. Sometimes people considered “one race” have more genetic variability than people of “different races”.

Und doch existieren „Menschenrassen“ tatsächlich. Nicht als biologische Fakten, sondern als
– unbewusste – Denkstrukturen
und Urteile in unseren Köpfen.

— Ulrich Kattman (Bundeszentrale für Politische Bildung)

And yet “human races” actually exist. Not as biological facts, but as – subconscious –
thinking structures and judgements in our minds.

— Ulrich Kattman (Bundeszentrale für Politische Bildung)

Many in Germany use words like “extreme right-wing” or “xenophobic” instead of “racist” because it is seen more as an ideology.

That means that racist acts are often not acknowledged as being racist.

That's a problem.

How does racism apply to inclusive design?

- Racism usually means a continuous, systematic discrimination.
- What can your product, your design, do to counteract that discrimination?
- Can you offer stipends or free tickets for members of groups that are targeted by racists?

A lot of us don't have to worry about having a proper WiFi connection or a quiet place to work from home. Every student from preschool through college should have free access to reliable WiFi especially now. What can we do as a community to pull together for students who need something as simple as WiFi in order to succeed? Please share and tag people in our community who can help. Aspects of Human Diversity

Age

Ageism is discrimination because of your age.

The stereotypes and infantilization of older and younger people by patronizing language affects older and younger people's self-esteem and behaviors.

— Wikipedia

After repeatedly hearing a stereotype that older or younger people are useless, older and younger people may begin to feel like dependent, non-contributing members of society. They may start to perceive themselves [...] in the same ways that others in society see them.

— Wikipedia

Studies have also specifically shown that when older and younger people hear these stereotypes about their supposed incompetence and uselessness, they perform worse on measures of competence and memory.

— Wikipedia

Common ageist assumptions:

- The person is too young to understand the big picture.
- The person is too old to handle technology.
- Millennials have it easy.
- Ageism is also inadvertently embedded in the ways that we generate statistics, for example through data collected based on large age categories (e.g., '60+') foisting anyone over 60 into “the grey zone” which obscures differences. (Wikipedia)

Accessible Web Development is Complicated

WebAIM Million Study

- 60% of the 1 million home pages had ARIA present.
- Home pages with ARIA present averaged 11.2 more detectable errors than pages without ARIA.
- Pages with a valid HTML5 doctype had significantly more page elements (average of 844 vs. 605) and errors (average of 61.9 vs. 53.3) than those with other doctypes.
- 2.1M layout tables were detected compared to only 114k data tables.

Dragon

Nuance released the lucky version 13 of Dragon Naturally Speaking. I've been doing some preliminary testing and here's what Dragon 13 supports (so far) in terms of ARIA:

- `role="button"`
- `role="link"`
- `role="radio"`
- `role="checkbox"`
- `aria-label`

That's just in about 30 mins of testing, so there's definitely more to test, but this is a huge step.

How to tackle Inclusive Design?

80% of Success

— Woody Allen

This also applies to inclusive design thinking.

- Keep an eye out for people who might be negatively affected by a design decision.
- Integrate minoritized groups into your
 - stories
 - personas
 - QA process
 - design/develop/project teams
