Tips for Styling Indian Ethnic Outfits

Play with Colors

The darker color outfits accentuate the look while camouflaging the bodily imperfections, thus they work well for chubby people. Skinny people should prefer lighter colors as they would give a more defined look to the body curves.

Monochrome is the New Trend

Gone are the days of mixing and matching colors to create an outfit. Even the Indian tradition has adopted the co-ord set fashion, commonly known as the ethnic sets. It helps the wearer to look more slim, thus, boosting confidence.

Sleeves are Crucial

Puffy and billowy sleeves are in fashion presently. These are preferred to maintain airiness and conceal the uneven shape of the arms. So, while shopping from affordable online shopping sites in India, be mindful of the shape of the sleeves.

Choose the Ideal Fabrics

Light fabrics such as georgette and satin are more accurate for heavier people, as they glide through the body, giving you a slimmer look. Also, these fabrics are not season-specific, so you have outfits for all the seasons. On the other hand, the slimmer people should go for heavier fabrics such as cotton or organza.

Choose the Right Neckline

Women with heavier bodies should prefer deep necklines such as V-shaped or sweetheart. These draw attention towards the kurta set, away from the chin and the neck flab. In contrast, women with slim bodies should opt for broader necklines such as square-shaped, boat necks, and more.

Vertical Pattern Magic

Vertical elongated lines give a slimmer appearance to the body. Thus, vertical line patterns are most appropriate for healthier women and should be avoided with thinner people.

Be Mindful of the Kurta Length

Curvy women should go for full-length outfits, to achieve an elegant shape. This helps them to hide the curvy shape. While short-length kurtis are ideal for a lean body.
